Nature: Impressions of the Soul

I think of Nature
as natural scenery, a force in the universe as well as the inherent character of a person.

In creating art,
I examined the connection between Nature and Soul because I feel they both seem to know me and hence form my identity.

When I attempt to express myself through art, I experience a deeper level of joy, as though the impressions of my soul are reflected in my art.

My purpose here is to convey my impressions of Nature through form and intense colors in Nature that move me.

Strong colors are my visual language allowing me to express intense emotions about Nature that connect with the spiritual force of the soul.

The soul immersed in the splendors of colors of Nature feeds me peace and bliss.

If the soul of humankind is the same, then I hope we all can find ourselves in the same profound state of joy and enlightenment.
